Now switching topics...

Q10 When it comes to the President and the Congress working on major issues, do you believe they are trying to work together and find consensus or they are trying to stick to their partisan positions and not compromise? (IF PARTISAN, THEN ASK:) Who do you feel is more responsible for this approach, the President and Democrats in Congress, the Republican majority in Congress, or are both sides equally at fault?

And, thinking about Iran...

Q33 As you may know, the United States is currently in negotiations with Iran that would limit, for at least ten years, Iran's ability to produce nuclear material. The deal would not end Iran's nuclear program, but would delay Iran's ability to produce enough materials to make nuclear weapons. In return, the United States and other Western nations would ease economic sanctions that have been imposed on Iran, and would eventually allow Iran to use nuclear power for other purposes, like energy. Do you think that this agreement will make a real difference or will not make a real difference in preventing Iran from producing nuclear weapons? *

Will NOT make a real difference .....	71
Not sure .....	5

* Asked of one-half the respondents (FORM A).

March 2007
As you may know, the United States recently reached a deal with North Korea that would normalize relations between the two countries and includes food and fuel aid for North Korea. In return, North Korea would suspend its nuclear weapon program. Do you think that this agreement will make a real difference or will not make a real difference in ending North Korea's nuclear weapon program?
